EVELYN BARGELT.

As a cartoonist and entertainer Miss Evelyn Bargelt is notable for her originality. Her program begins with a group of chalk drawings, and from this feature she proceeds with her delightful readings and sketches.

Following Miss Bargelt's entertainment in a Florida city not long ago one of the newspapers commented as follows: "Her very first appearance created great applause, and the volume of appreciation and enthusiasm grew as the entertainment progressed. Her work throughout was of the very cleverest sort and different from the old time chalk drawer's work."

During the entertainment Miss Bargelt introduces a number of interesting features, one of which is to select some writings, either poetry or prose, which she reads to the audience and at the same time presents it in picture form. Thus she gives her audience a double conception.

Her pictures appear on the canvas as if by magic, beginning with a few simple words and ending with a gorgeous and handsome production. Her crayon work is as comical as her more dignified sketches are beautiful.

Miss Bargelt's highly pleasing personality is another feature which adds greatly to the success of her programs.

Jubilee Temperance Service

The session of Congress just closed will be memorable in the annals of American history because of its temperance legislation. Special temperance music will be given by the full Easter Chorus Choir and addresses will be made as follows: "Washington Dry—Its Influence upon the Nation," E. Howard Blackburn; "Twenty-five States Bone Dry, How? What It Means," E. M. Pennell; "Swinging Into Line For National Prohibition by 1920," B. F. Madore. This will be a most enthusiastic service to which the public is cordially invited. At 11 a. m., in this church the pastor will preach on, "The Broad Visioned Christian." FOUR MORE YEARS, MR. PRESIDENT

Woodrow Wilson Sunday completed his first term as President of the United States.

No other four years except those of Lincoln have been so eventful, and no other four years except those of Lincoln have made so much history of first importance.

One may like Mr. Wilson or dislike him, approve his policies or detest them, but nobody can deny him a place among the masterful Presidents who have stamped their genius for all times upon the government of the United States. The courses of American history have been changed mightily by the fact that Woodrow Wilson was President, and because he has been President the processes of American Government will never again be quite what they were in the past.

Whatever the verdict of history may be upon the various policies of the Wilson Administration, no difficulty will be experienced in fixing the responsibility. Since March 4, 1913, Mr. Wilson has been the Government of the United States in as great a degree as Jefferson or Jackson and in even a greater degree than Washington or Lincoln.

Mr. Taft was never President during his four years in the White House; the Republican Party was President. Mr. Roosevelt was President part of the time during his two terms; the Republican Old Guard was President part of the time, and there were glorious intervals in which Wall Street reigned supreme, after the manner of Frederick the Great, who did what he pleased and allowed his subjects to say what they pleased—Mr. Roosevelt playing the role of garrulous but obedient populace.

The President of the United States during the last four years has been Woodrow Wilson, and no other—not the Democratic Party, not Wall St., not the Cabinet, not Congress, but Woodrow Wilson and he alone. What is good is his, and what is bad is his. Never for a moment has he relaxed his grip upon the Government. Never for a moment has any other mind and purpose than his controlled the policies of his Administration. He has yielded to nobody. He has compromised with nobody except the American people. Abused and villified as few Presidents have ever been, denounced by his enemies alternately as a weakling and a despot, a coward and a dictator, he has gone his way if not serenely at least with a sure and certain step.

His critics are fond of pretending that they cannot understand what he is trying to do, but no doubts assail him. He knows what he wants to do and how he wants to do it. When he cannot reach his goal by one path he abruptly changes his course and follows another path, but always with an eye single to the goal itself.

No other President ever so completely controlled Congress or made so little ostensible effort to control Congress. He has shaped legislation by none of the old and familiar devices. Nobody has been bribed by patronage to support his policies and measures, nor has anybody been punished by the withholding of patronage for opposing the Administration. There has been no denunciation of Congress, or of individual members of issue, no matter how violent the opposition, the President has managed to have his way. He has ruled by the sheer force of ability—because his is the biggest brain and his the broadest vision in Washington. His victories over a sullen and reluctant Congress have been veritable triumphs of mind over matter.

Even his bitterest enemies are compelled to acknowledge this extraordinary intellectual power. When Mr. Roosevelt indulged in his outbursts of foam and fury at the general reluctance of the American people to plunge blindly into war he could give no reason for this state of public opinion except that President Wilson had "chloroformed the conscience of the country." In other words, 100,000,000 people had been so hypnotized by the President that they thought only what he wanted them to think, believed only what he wanted them to believe and did only what he wanted them to do. A superman, indeed, if this be true—a superman above all other supermen in history; yet it is not true. Mr. Wilson's influence over public opinion lies in the ability to understand it, and give it adequate expression, not in the ability to dictate a nation's sentiments.

Nevertheless, Mr. Wilson has exercised a greater influence over the political thought of the American people over the political thought of the whole world, for that matter—than any other man of his generation. He has become in a way the universal spokesman of democracy and a universal leader of democracy. When Europe speculates as to what the United States thinks or what the United States will do, it asks what Mr. Wilson thinks and what Mr. Wilson will do. Even his political opponents at home pay the same tribute to him. In each crisis they have looked to him for decision and admitted that his decision must necessarily be final.

In all the attacks that have been directed against his foreign policies, it is a singular fact that the Republican opposition has never ventured to formulate a definite foreign policy of its own as a substitute for his. Nor has any Republican member of Congress ever introduced a war resolution to force the President's hand—although the power to declare war is exclusively a prerogative of Congress.

The chief complaint of Mr. Wilson's critics is that he is not belligerent, that he is not warlike, that he is "too proud to fight." For the welfare of American institutions this is a happy failing. A President with Mr. Wilson's genius for government and his power to impose his political will upon others would be a grave menace to the Republic if these extraordinary gifts were supplemented by

Common School Examination

For admission to the examination for common school graduation, pupils must send a written application and a recommendation signed by their teacher, to the office of the County Superintendent on or before March 31, 1917.

Diplomas will be granted to those who pass the examination provided they are fifteen years of age or over. Diplomas will not be granted to pupils under fifteen years of age. The age of the pupil must be given in the application.

All pupils residing in school districts in which no public high school are maintained and who desire to enter such schools in the fall of 1917, will make application at this time. In such cases the pupil should state in his application the high school which he expects to attend.

The applicant will be examined in the following subjects, namely: Reading, writing, spelling, written arithmetic, mental arithmetic, grammar, geography, history and physiology.

Teachers should not recommend pupils for examination who have not a reasonable chance of passing it. Teachers should exercise great care in making their recommendations.

Pupils should be taught how to prepare a good manuscript. We do not feel that we are justified in granting a diploma to a pupil who cannot write legibly, express himself clearly, and arrange a neat and accurate manuscript.

Teachers having applicants for examination may receive some very helpful suggestions by reading the article in our last Annual Report under the heading Common School Graduation.

The places and dates of holding this examination will be announced on April 6, 1917.

Respectfully submitted,
LLOYD H. HINKLE,
Bedford, Pa., March 5, 1917.

Little Talks on Health and Hygiene
by Samuel G. Dixon, M. D., LL. D.
Commissioner of Health

With the war cloud floating over and the grave possibilities of our race being still further disturbed by the continuance of a desperate struggle in force among so many nations the civilized world, we can very well afford to remember that a stitch in time saves nine and take those steps of preparedness which are available along the lines of health as they are effected by the foods we consume in our daily life. This may not be as spectacular an element as others that are being featured under the ad of preparedness now-a-days, but anyone stops to think, he will realize that it has a value that is essential and primary to the health of the nation either from the standpoint of the artificial prices that are now being forced upon us by the pressure of outside events or even in the event of graver conditions.

We all realize some of the conditions which lie at the bottom of the present scarcity of food and high prices with the bearing it has upon the public health. We know that the war made a phenomenal demand for labor in the munition works and that this has become so generally responded to that the farmers and truck gardeners have been robbed of their help and we lose thus a certain plume of our regular vegetable food. This has been one cause of the advance in prices. There are others that we are asked to believe in but no less easy of credence. We know that advantage has been taken of this actual condition in the way of representing that expense of production are higher, and we know that these expenses have often been exaggerated. We also know that corners in food stuffs have been made for the sole purpose of advancing the prices. Exports must play a part in high prices, yet when potatoes are said to be selling for less in London than in New York, one questions what proportion foreign sales play in the high prices asked.

The middleman seems hard to control, yet he is one of the factors that is causing the unnaturally high prices of food.

While, by the enforcement of good laws, we may reduce the speculative feature and cause some improvement in regulation of prices, the fact still remains that even the natural causes under present conditions and those to be expected will of necessity keep up the prices of food beyond anything we have experienced for years.

Now in the face of the possibility that we will be at war ourselves, we must look the fact in the face that men will be diverted more and more from farming to those occupations necessary to prepare and maintain the national defense. It also behooves us to think deeply and take stock of matters that relate to our food supply, since day by day in the papers we have seen what this question means not only to the fighting armies but to the nations behind them.

We shall refer to this subject from time to time in these Little Talks issued by the State Department of Health of Pennsylvania. Certain food stuffs will be spoken of and their comparative value approximately estimated.

The potato is at present the most advertised vegetable we have. Its consumptions far exceeds any other vegetable made up of a large proportion of starch. Let us consider the claims of the potato to the high dignity that has suddenly been thrust upon it.

The human digestive system is limited in its power to digest properly large quantities of starch. Americans have made general use of starch foods and this practice is playing its part in checking the natural growth of our people, both in mind and in body.

The excessive eating of potatoes, so often taken at a meal simply as a matter of habit when there are other starchy foods and sugar in the meal to supply the same want, causes a catarrhal condition of the digestive system, thereby preventing the normal working of the glands of digestion. Gradually a diseased condition of the organs of digestion results and this prevents nature's process of preparing food for assimilation. Consequently the system has to absorb the waste products and a gradual starvation and poisoning is the result. The catarrhal patient, in addition, gradually loses resistance to germ diseases.

From babyhood and childhood up we Americans indulge in an excess of starchy foods. A well-rounded diet demands starch along with meat and fat, of course, but we indulge in an excess of starch and the habit often continues through adult life.

Raw potatoes contain about 80% of water, and in skinning and eying we lose on an average about 10% of the raw potato. The baking of potatoes causes less loss and produces the most wholesome preparation for human consumption that can be made of the vegetable.

What does this suggest with the potato in the limelight and its cost out of all proportion to its real value? The answer is that its use can not only be cut down to a normal proportion of the diet for those who like its taste, but it can be entirely replaced by other foodstuffs which would supply starch in even greater quantities.

Potatoes have 18 parts to the hundred of starch and sugar (carbohydrates); jellies and marmalades, 60 to 90 parts; rice, 79; buckwheat and barley, 77; hominy, 76; cracked wheat, 75; macaroni and spaghetti, 74; raisins, 68; oatmeal, 67; toast, 66; beans, 60; bread, 50 to 60; chocolate, 30; canned peas, 9; dried peas, 62.

In raisins the carbohydrates are mostly of the soluble variety known as sugars. In all the other foods mentioned the carbohydrates present is mainly starch.

With these things in mind it is not hard to think of the potato being knocked off its pedestal.

RED CROSS SEALS

RAISED A MILLION

Three Hundred Million Penny Holiday Tokens Sold in 1916 Christmas Campaign—Newspapers Thanked by National Tuberculosis Association

New York, March 5.—Red Cross Christmas seals raised in the 1916 sale $1,000,000 for the tuberculosis campaign, according to the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, which announced to day the results of the recent holiday campaign. All reports are not in, but carefully revised estimates of the few yet outstanding indicates that more than one hundred million seals were sold.

All the proceeds of the sale, amounting to a tax for health work of one cent on each person in the country except the insular possessions, are devoted to preventive tuberculosis work in the states and communities in which the seals are sold.

The National Association points with gratification to the fact that it realized its slogan "one seal for each inhabitant in the United States." Seals have been sold annually at the holiday season, beginning with 1908. They have been the means of raising a total of $4,206,051 for tuberculosis work. In addition to the thousands of tuberculosis beds which this sum has made possible, the seals have also aided in the establishment of hundreds of open-air schools, employment of thousands of tuberculosis visiting nurses, and have been an indirect cause of tremendous advances in the whole field of public health work.

Tuberculosis committees have been organized in practically every community of any size in the country. Every state in the union now has a state society engaged in state-wide anti-tuberculosis work. Hundreds of thousands of open windows, letting in unwonted quantities of fresh air to sleepers, may be traced directly to the public health educational effect of the Red Cross Christmas seals.

Last fall agents sold seals in every state and territory of the United States, except Guam, Tahiti and Samoa. Counting the school children, some 300,000, the total number of agents of the country approached 500,000. These included club women, school teachers, merchants, bankers, post masters, and in fact, every kind of business man and woman.

The educational feature of the seal campaign was developed in 1916 on a larger scale than ever before. School teachers received and read to their pupils one hundred and fifteen thousand story talks on tuberculosis. During Tuberculosis Week in December three hundred and fifty thousand pieces of educational literature, containing suggestions for sermons on tuberculosis and recommendations for medicinal examination of employees were distributed.

"Without the co-operation of the press of the country unstintingly given, as it always has been, these tremendous results from the Red Cross seal sale would have been impossible," said Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, Executive Secretary for the National Association, in making public the results of the sale. "Both directly and indirectly the newspapers of the country have, through the Red Cross Christmas seal sale, contributed to the alleviation of human suffering and to the total of human happiness, to a greater degree than any other single agency."

THE BOY WHO DIDN'T PASS

A sad-faced little fellow sits alone in deep disgrace. There's a lump arising in his throat and tears stream down his face. He wandered from his playmates, for he doesn't want to hear Their shout of merry laughter since the world has lost its cheer, He has sipped the cup of sorrow, he has drained the bitter glass, And his heart is fairly breaking; he the boy who didn't pass.

In the apple tree the robin sings a cheery little song. But he doesn't seem to hear it, showing plainly something's wrong. Comes his faithful little spaniel for a romp and bit of play, But the troubled little fellow sternly bids him go away. And alone he sits in sorrow, with his hair a tangled mass, And his eyes are red with weeping he's the boy who didn't pass.

Oh, you who boast a laughing so and speak of him as bright, And you who love a little girl who comes to you tonight With smiling eyes and dancing feet with honors from her school, Turn to that lonely boy who thinks he is a fool, And take him kindly by the hand, the dullest in the class; He is the one who most needs love—the boy who didn't pass.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD NEWS

Material progress in expediting the movement of freight over the Pennsylvania Railroad System, between the Middle West and eastern points, is being effected through the work of the newly established Pennsylvania System Joint Embargo Committee, which has its headquarters at Pittsburgh.

This Committee was created at the direction of the Executive Officers, following conferences held at Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, to devise means for more satisfactorily handling freight affected by embargo, between the Lines East and West. Its purpose is to serve the public more fully by making, as promptly as possible, modifications of embargoes where transportation conditions and the ability of consignees to remove freight from the cars promptly upon arrival, permit such exceptions to be made. This makes more effective the object sought in handling freight under embargo, which is to prevent terminal congestion by separating the freights that will be held in cars at destination from that which will be taken off the Railroad's hands without delay.

As a result of the Committee's efforts, there have been moved in the last week, through the Pittsburgh and Buffalo gateways, more than 3,100 carloads of freight of all kinds, which were under embargo and could not have been handled with equal promptness, if at all, except by special arrangement effected by the Committee. Of this freight, approximately 2,000 cars were eastbound and 1,100 cars westbound. At the close of the week, arrangements were pending for the movement of 4,100 additional cars of embargoed freight.

During the period in question, the Committee has had presented to it for consideration nearly 1,500 separate applications for individual shipments under special modifications of the embargoes. It has been possible thus far to grant about half of these applications. All shippers seeking special permits for the movement of embargoed freight have been placed upon an equal footing. All such applications are being granted as fast as physical means for doing so can be found. No requests have been declined, even temporarily, except by reason of actual necessity.

The Pennsylvania System Joint Embargo Committee virtually constitutes a clearing house for handling all requests for the special movement of freight affected by embargoes, between the Eastern and Western lines of the System. Its work practically unites the transportation facilities of the two branches of the Pennsylvania System in one organization. Shippers are thus relieved of the necessity of dealing with more than one representative of the Railroad in conducting their negotiations or in making inquiries, as the work is done by the Committee with the greatest possible expedition.

through the use of the telephone and the telegraph. As a result of systematizing the work, the average length of time required to arrange a special modification of an embargo has been more than cut in half, and the number of modifications possible to allow has been greatly increased.

The Committee is a part of the transportation organization of the Pennsylvania System. It is not intended to deal directly with the public, but to simplify the work of arranging shipments after application has been made to a proper officer of either the Lines East or West. The active work of the Committee is in charge of the following:

John M. Gross, Assistant General Freight Agent, Pennsylvania Railroad Co., Chairman.

J. E. Weiter, General Western Freight Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Chicago, Ill.

John Callahan, representing Superintendent Freight Transportation, Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburgh, Pa.

G. H. Burtis, representing Superintendent Freight Transportation, Pennsylvania Railroad East of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pittsburgh was selected as the location for carrying on the clearing house work of the Special Committee because it is the most central point of the entire System, affording the quickest communication by wire with all points of the Lines East and West.

Such progress has recently been made in clearing up the freight congestion that the Management of the Pennsylvania Lines West hopes, within a few days, to be able to remove the greater part of the restrictions on the movement of domestic freight in either direction, throughout that territory. Comparatively few restrictions on domestic freight in Pennsylvania Railroad territory east of Pittsburgh and Buffalo obtain at the present time.

It is planned to continue in effect, indefinitely, the general embargoes against export freight at the seaports of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Such freight, as heretofore, will be accepted only where the shippers present satisfactory evidence that adequate vessel space has been engaged and that the cars will be promptly unloaded upon arrival. This practice will be maintained in order that the export freight traffic may be strictly controlled, and the movement of foodstuffs and other necessities for domestic consumption may be as free as possible. This is in conformity with the established policy of the Pennsylvania System to give foodstuffs for home use preferences in payment over all other kinds of freight.

Killed While Staying Out of State to Avoid Trial

TOWANDA, Pa., Feb. 25—Edward M. Hainesworth, Jr., of Towanda, staying in Binghamton, N. Y., to avoid trial in the Bedford county criminal courts for assaulting a young man, was shot and killed in Binghamton early yesterday morning.

He went out of a saloon to watch three men fight, and was struck in the head by a bullet fired by a man who intended to kill another.

Two North America birds that are in great immediate need of protection are the white crane and his distant cousin, the Carolina rail, or so-called. The former, once a denizen of the western prairies, is almost extinct, and the Sandhill crane also seems in danger. The Carolina rail is in great demand as a table delicacy.

ANNOUNCEMENT No. 4

I am in the coal, ice and wood business in Bedford, U. S. A. This is not a stock company, corporation or partnership, of any kind. It is simply a little business I have established for my self in my home town. Now when I do not want to be smart or independent at all, I want to give the very best service I can and I am here to see that all get a square deal.

I write all these announcements my self and they are original and I will not promise them to appear in this paper for any length of time. If you see a joke which makes you laugh, I will be satisfied with the amount this ad has cost me. These announcements will appear each week as long as I can pay spot cash for them, and when you don't see them any more you will know I am down and out. I will try not to be personaf, but if any ones name appears it will be as a joke and with his consent. I am at your service at all times and all hours either for business or for a favor. Any one in this world can do business with me except one man and he knows it. No details.

If the service which my employees or my self gives to you is not entirely satisfactory, I will consider it a great favor by reporting it to my office. On the other hand I want you to give all my people who are working for me a fair chance and treat them the same as you want them to treat you.

There has been something going on in this town that is going to be stopped as far as I am concerned. You will know by the following what I mean. Beginning Monday morning, March 12, if I hear of any one buying coal from any other dealer and not paying him for it and then coming to me and buying my coal for cash, or trying to buy my coal on credit and paying the other man cash take it from me these parties will not do business with me.

Now, remember this is a free country and you can do as you please about it. This is the way I run my business wether it is for one day or fifty years.

Within the last week or two some parties, I say some parties, in this town have been saying to one another I am mixed up either in my personal affairs or some other business. This is no true. While they have been going around talking about me, I have been buying coal fast enough to keep the price from going any higher possibly for these same people.

I am not over anxious to get rich. I just want enough so I can make a nice living and help any one in distress.

I hereby submit to you the exact amount of coal I have delivered in this town, in these two months: from January 1st. to March 1st., 1917, 2,537,797 lbs. or almost 1133 tons. The papers for this can be seen at my office at any time. It is given to you in lbs and gross tons and you may figure it out for your self both ways.

Please remember the coal situation in Bedford was fierce. Take the amount of tons I have submitted to you above and add from $1.00 to $1.50 for each ton, then you will know how much more money I would have made on my coal and I would have sold just as much.

Think this over. Don't forget that when you order any coal, ice or wood from me that you will get it as long as I have it, and please remember that I expect to be paid for it. Believe me.

If you see me doing work in this town other than the coal, ice or wood business you may rest assured that I am doing it for myself or as a favor for a friend.

Yard at the old ice plant I am still selling my coal at $5.00 for the long ton, delivered anywhere in town or $4.60 for the long ton at the yard. Main office in Ridenour Building, Room No. 2. Second floor. Both phones.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrh Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

Government Alter the Coal Barons

The United States Government has indicted 64 individuals and 108 corporations for coalition in fixing prices of coal and fleecing the common people out of $100,000,000.

An advance of $1.75 a ton was agreed on in January in the Waldorf Astoria in New York. Only the bituminous operators are named. The anthracite operators are to come next. "17-YEAR LOCUST" DUE

Think It Will Come as a Pest in Pennsylvania

The "seventeen-year locust" is due in Pennsylvania this year, according to C. H. Hadley, Jr., in charge of Entomology Extension at State College. The pest is what is known as "brood eight of the periodical cicada" and it appeared here in 1900.

"This is one of the largest insect broods to occur in this State," says Hadley. "While locusts are usually of importance mainly because of the popular interest aroused, it is quite possible that considerable damage may be caused in those places where the insects appear in unusual abundance."

The counties in which the locust swarms of the 1917 brood are due to occur, according to past records, are Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Cambria, Clarion, Indiana, Lawrence, Mercer, Venango, and Washington. Smaller more or less scattering swarms, may be expected in Allegheny, Crawford, Fayette, Forest, Huntingdon, Jefferson, Snyder and Westmoreland Counties.

No Needs for Hysteria, in Opinion of Houston

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Striking points in his statement on the food situation by Secretary of Agriculture Houston follows:

The food situation does not justify hysteria.

The thought of the people should not be directed by those who have the interests of another country primarily at heart, or any selfish interest to further.

Where the food supply is located, who owns it, whether there is artificial manipulation or control, no one can state with certainty. It is essential that we have the facts.

Department experts report an annual waste in foodstuffs of $700,000,000. Every individual and community should consider food conservation.

The solution certainly will not involve a food dictatorship.

The total available supply of wheat aggregates 804,000,000 bushels, with exports decreasing.

Meat products last year showed an increase of 2,000,000,000 pounds over 1915. Exports aggregated 1,500,000,000 pounds, or 500,000,000 lbs., less than the years increase.

The present supply of staples by no means justifies prevailing high prices.

WOODROW WILSON

military ambition and a passion for military glory.

It was the great good fortune of the United States in the Civil War that it had Abraham Lincoln for President, all of whose principles and habits of government were incorrigibly civilian. Thus a President who might have made himself an absolute military dictator held steadfastly to the creed of the Illinois country lawyer, and that creed was the creed upon which all the foundation stones of the Republic rest. It is still the great fortune of the United States that in the darkest crisis of modern history it has a President with the same unquenchable passion for justice and liberty, who looks upon military power only as the instrument of civil power and worships no gods of conquest or imperialism.

If the world, after this war is to be re-established upon the basis of democracy, the political principles of Woodrow Wilson must prevail. Nothing else can save it. On the verge of the crisis, when it is inevitable that the United States must draw the sword in defense of its rights and its honor, the American people can face the future in supreme confidence that they will enter the war under a leadership that knows no ulterior purpose—a leadership that is wise and sagacious and self-restrained and that will safeguard republican institutions as the most precious possession of mankind.

No other American is so well fitted by temperament, by training, by ability and by mastery of the science and art of government to solve the problems that must confront this country during the next four years. No other American in the end is so likely to dominate the political thought of the world and guide it along the difficult path of liberty and democracy. There is nobly else to whom the American people could so safely entrust their destiny, or whose faults as well as whose virtues so surely make for the preservation of government of the people by the people and for the people.

STATE AGRICULTURAL NOTES

The extensive demand for fat and bologna cows at good prices has had the effect of reducing many dairies in Bucks County.

There are an unusually large number of farm sales this spring and in some sections the farmers, both owner and tenant have given up the work on account of the scarcity of farm help.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Patton urges all farmers not to reduce their acreage in potatoes this year as a continued potato famine would be a great calamity with the country in its present unsettled state.

A Chester county cattle dealer was fined twenty-five dollars and costs amounting to over one hundred dollars for illegally importing cattle into the State. A number of tuberculosis cows were driven from Maryland without previous inspection or test.

The Dairy and Food Bureau of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has total receipts for January and February of $29,645.28 against a total of slightly over $303,000 for the entire year of 1916.

Prosecutions against dealers violating the pure food acts in the sale of adulterated and impure foods resulted in fines of $1,140.00 being paid into the State Treasury during February.

The tendency of the farmers in the State at the present time seems to be for the continued use of more lime and less commercial fertilizers.

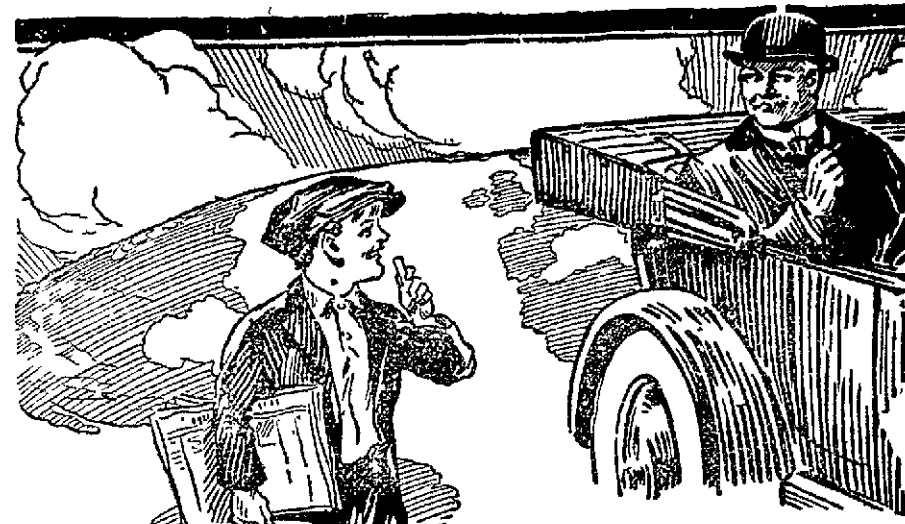

Reports from every section of the State say that the February weather conditions were unfavorable for the winter grain.

Detailed tonnage reports of commercial fertilizers sold in Pennsylvania last year show a shortage of over 50,000 as compared with the sales in 1915.

Artificial Carlsbad Salts for Indigestion

For chronic indigestion caused by too great acidity of the stomach juices, bicarbonate of soda is the usual treatment, but Dr. Louis T. de M. Sajous of Philadelphia quotes approvingly in the New York Medical Journal Dr Haymen's most recent procedure. This is to administer artificial Carlsbad water, the effects of which he says, seems to be more pronounced as well as more lasting.

Dr. Haymen makes his artificial Carlsbad water as follows: Sulphate of soda, 44 parts; bicarbonate of soda, 36 parts; chloride of soda, 18 parts; sulphate of potash, 2 parts. Of these salts one teaspoonful is given in a half pint of water at between 90 and 120 degrees F. one hour before breakfast.

THE HOUSE OF SERVICE

Either Piano or Player Piano.

Anticipating the big advance in manufacturing cost on January 1, 1917, we placed large contracts for FOSTER PIANOS and PLAYER-PIANOS as early as last August. The extraordinary demand made on the factory however during the Holiday season together with the freight congestion of freight traffic delayed our shipments to such an extent that the bulk of our orders was not filled until after Xmas and during the last few weeks. As a result our Cumberland store as well as our big warehouses are filled to overflowing with FOSTER PIANOS and PLAYERS. And we must find a quick outlet of this surplus stock.

Foster Player 40 Months To Pay Foster Piano $259

These are all brand new instruments fresh from the factory, the same old reliable FOSTER PIANOS and PLAYERS which we have sold for 25 years. The instruments are standard as bread and butter. The special prices named above are even lower than the regular prices that prevailed on Foster goods prior to the big advance January 1st, which advance is $75 to $100 per instrument according to the model.

$5.00 sends the Piano to your home. $10.00 sends the Player to your home. Send your $5.00 today or send your $10.00 which ever you want—the Piano or Player Piano. Free Stool, Free Bench, Free Music Rolls, Cash Bonus, Free Insurance.

The Sensible Six

Sensible because of its power. The valve-in-head motor delivers full 41 h.p. at 2500 r.p.m.—one h.p. for every 53 pounds of car weight. There is plenty of power for hardest pulling—more actual power and more proportionate power than any other car of its size.

Inquire about this feature at our show-rooms or from any driver of a Sensible Six.
